

How to Choose the Right College

“College is just a tool to help you achieve your life goals.”

– David Montesano

College planning can be such an overwhelming process for many parents. As loving parents, we always want what is best for our children and more importantly their future. In many cases, a college education will position your child for employment opportunities and help build a network of life-long connections. During this time of year, many high school seniors are making a selection on where to attend this upcoming Fall. The questions I hear so often from college-bound families are:

- How can I afford the annual cost for college?
- What happens when child two comes through?
- My child doesn't know what they want to do.
- Does it make sense to dorm or live at home?
- How are other families paying for college?
- We just didn't save enough, what are my financing options?
